AGAINST NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

Winsted Town Clerk and Clergymen Conspire to Freeze Them Out.

Winsted, Nov. 23.—The newspaper men of Winsted, who have long been noted for ferreting out secret marriages, are having considerable trouble of late trying to keep track of the marriages that are performed in the borough. In the past, if a rumor reached a reporter that certain persons had been married in the town he simply consulted the town records and ascertained positively whether the report was true or not.

Charles H. Bassett, the present town clerk, has, however, formed the opinion that the stubs kept when marriage licenses are issued are his personal property and newspapermen are denied access to them until the license itself has been returned, usually a month afterwards. Further than that when questioned he positively denies that such a license has been issued. Several clergymen have followed his example and as a result secret marriages are frequently being brought to light by the reporters who usually succeed despite the obstacles placed before them. If present conditions continue Winsted is likely to assume the honors formerly held by Millerton, N. Y., as the Gretna Green of Connecticut.

LOST HER POCKETBOOK.

Woman Dropped One Containing $12.—Picked Up By Brakeman.

New Britain, Nov. 23.—While crossing the railroad tracks at Elm street yesterday a local woman, who refused to divulge her name, dropped her pocketbook, containing $12, with which she was to pay a month's rent to her landlord.

A west bound freight was passing at the time and one of the brakemen jumped off quickly picked up the pocketbook and got back on the moving train.

A bystander witnessed the whole performance and hastened to the woman to tell her of her loss. The police were notified. A telephone message was sent to Waterbury to hold up the brakeman. An answer came some time later from that city. The railroad said he would refuse to give up unless the woman could identify her property to his satisfaction. He was in town again this morning on the return trip. He called at the police station and left the pocketbook without requiring the formality of identification.

Price of Paper Raised.

Detroit, Mich. Nov. 23.—The Detroit Free Press will this morning announce an increase in price from 1 cent to 2 cents per copy, beginning on December 2. The price of the Sunday edition will remain at 5 cents. The Detroit News will announce a similar increase in the price of its morning edition, but the afternoon edition will not be advanced from its present price of 1 cent. The increased cost of white paper and other elements that enter into the production of a newspaper is given as the cause of the increase.

Sunday Closing at Chicago.

All over the city temperance workers will gather evidence showing violations of the Sunday closing law. The saloon men are talking of seeking a court injunction against interference with their open Sunday privileges.

GREETING TO ELI

Harvard Square Alive With Football Enthusiasm—Decorations Everywhere

YALE 6 IN FIRST HALF

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 23.—Harvard Square was bustling with activity and blossoming in two colors, the red and the blue, with the first of the army of forty thousand people, all eager for the football game between Harvard and Yale, reached Cambridge to-day. The old college buildings in the yard were resplendent in Harvard flags and the stores in Harvard Square were gaily decorated with both colors, while undergraduates, as well as old time students, were rushing about receiving visitors. Across the river rose the grey walls of the stadium, the scene of the day's contest.

Many thousand additional seats were provided for by the erection of temporary stands at the open end along the side lines and on top of the great structure. The turf was well rolled and entirely free from frost, but yesterday's moist weather had made it a trifle slippery so that several hours before the game it looked as if the players might find the footing uncertain and quick starts almost impossible.

Despite the swarm of Yale enthusiasts all sanguine of victory, the undergraduates of Harvard were still undismayed this forenoon and appeared unanimous in their belief that their team would win, notwithstanding Yale's undoubted strength and the recent crimson defeats. Still game and wiles wagers were made the size of the score or on Harvard's chances of crossing Yale's goal line.

Reports from the quarters where the two teams had spent the night were of an encouraging nature and the different trainers had no hesitancy in stating that their charges were in excellent shape and with few exceptions able to play seventy minutes of hard football. The weather, from the viewpoint of thousands of spectators, was ideal, the day being typical of perfect Indian summer. The players, however, would perhaps have been better satisfied if the temperature had been several degrees lower, and the atmosphere more frosty and bracing.

The day was eminently entirely given up to the game and practically all business in Cambridge, except that of entertaining the visitors, was forgotten.

Several thousand people, rather than risk meagre lunch accommodations in the city, brought their own fare to Soldiers' field so that the stadium, even at the noon hour, was a scene of considerable activity.

In anticipation of a multitude of automobiles the Harvard athletic management arranged for a broad parking space in the rear of the stadium covering not only three other football fields but two baseball diamonds. In addition many of the residents of that portion of Brighton near the stadium, threw open their yards for the accommodation of the motor cars.

The arrival of these great squadrons of powerful machines, nearly all gaily decorated with either blue or crimson flags, was one of the spectacular features of the day. Some of the cars were completely draped in bunting while over the hoods in the rear were hung broad banners with the words "Yale" or "Harvard" in white against the blue back ground or black against the red.

Many of the cars mounted flag poles on which were flown broad streamers which snapped in the breeze and the automobiles scurried out to the stadium by the various roads.

Game Starts at 2:08.

Burr started the game at 2:08 by kicking to Tad Jones; Coy took the ball and punted to Harvard's twenty-five yard line. On a fake kick New-hall sent the ball over Coy's head and Harvard got the ball. Captain Parker dropped back for a kick, but it was a failure. Wendell made three yards around Yale's left end. Captain Parker was unable to gain and was pushed back for a loss. Burr sent through the center to the thirty-five yard line. Burr was sent through for eight more. Burr got to the center of the field, where he was thrown heavily. Yale made only four yards on three downs, as Harvard was putting up a very strong defensive game. Coy made one yard and Bonmar made two. The ball was lost at the eighteen yard line. Burr kicked to Tad Jones, who ran it back to the middle of the field. An outside kick sent the ball to Yale's thirty yard line. Coy took it to the twenty yard line for the first down. Yale was penalized for holding and the ball was taken back to the middle of the field. Coy went around the right end for three yards. It was Yale's ball on Harvard's fifty yard line. Eight yards were made on a forward pass and then Coy was thrown back for a loss of ten yards.

Yale Scores in First Half.

With the ball in the center of the field, Coy went through the center for two yards. On the next play he went to Harvard's thirty yard line. Bonmar had been tackling so heavily that he was unable to continue the game and Philbin was sent in his place. He went through to Harvard's twenty yard line and was sent through the left for eight yards more. Another line plunge and the ball was on Harvard's five yard line. Once more Harvard braced, but Yale was not to be denied and the next plunge found the ball on the three

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY

New York Police Think It is a Case of Murder and Suicide.

New York, Nov. 23.—A double tragedy, believed by the police to be a murder and suicide, was discovered early to-day by firemen who had been called out to subdue a blaze in the home of Nicholas Smith, a wealthy manufacturer, of New Rochelle. When the firemen burst into the house after the flames had been controlled, they found Smith and his young wife dead, each with a bullet wound in the breast and apparently instantly killed. The bullet which killed the husband entered his head just behind the left ear. On the floor beside Smith's body was found a revolver with which it is believed, the fatal double shooting was done. That Smith had killed his wife, fired the house in hope that it would hide his crime and then killed himself was plainly proven in a note found in the room.

That the act was that of an insane man seems to be almost as clearly proven by the wording of the note. It was addressed to "Dear Minnie," and in it Smith told of his intention of killing his wife, then setting fire to the house and finally killing himself. He said that he had cut off his hair because his head ached. It is believed that fully an hour and a half elapsed between the time Mrs. Smith was shot to death as she lay sleeping in her bed and the firing of the shot which completed the tragedy. In this interval Smith made a careful inventory of nearly everything of value in the house and left it with instructions that all his debts be paid.

Two women servants who were in the house at the time of the tragedy were able later to tell something of the causes leading up to the tragedy. They were in a hysterical condition, however, when the firemen broke into the burning house and found them locked in a room filled with smoke. One of the women told the police that Mr. and Mrs. Smith had quarreled violently last evening. She told them also that she had heard the shots fired and that there was an interval of at least an hour and a half between the first and second. During all the time from the firing of the first shot until the firemen came, the woman said, she and her companion had remained locked in their room.

Smith was an automobile manufacturer and had a place of business in this city.

"Dear Minnie: Pay my debts. I shute cut my hair off, for my head aches. The fire will cover my deed."

Edward III.'s Drum Corps.

Probably introduced from the east, is frequently mentioned in the accounts of the first crusade. When Edward III. and his queen made their triumphal entry into Calais, "tamboours," or drums, were among the instruments which were played in their honor. Another of these was called a "naker," or kettle drum, taken, together with its name, from the Arabs. The poet Chaucer also mentions this instrument in his description of the tournament in the "Knights Tale."

Fifes, trompes, nakers and clarinets, that in the battail blounde blyndy soundes.

The king generally kept a troop of these bandmen or minstrels in his employ, and we read that Edward III. on one occasion gave a sum of 60 shillings to Roger the trumpeter, Janino the naker and others for their performances.—Chambers' Journal.

The Soul and the Beard.

In Russia it was the common belief up to the time of Peter the Great that beardless men were also soulless and that a man who purposely admitted having his beard shaved could never enter heaven. The great Peter above referred to ordered his beathens to "have up," so as to appear more civilized, and when they refused to comply with his edict he fined the wealthy and middle classes 100 rubles for each beard that was permitted to grow and each peasant and laborer a kopeck for the same privilege. Finally the priests were appealed to, and they informed their parishioners that unless they submitted to having their beards shaved they need not expect that St. Nicholas, the gatekeeper of heaven, would be able to distinguish them from the bearded Turks. That had the desired effect.

Cinnamon Toppers.

Both cinnamon and cassia contain tannin, and too much of either has the same effect as excessive tea drinking. There are cinnamon and cassia toppers who are as much addicted to the habit of chewing the bark as some men are to chewing tobacco. The cinnamon toppers acquire their habit chiefly from working in the woods stripping the bark from the trees and drying it. It is graded by men who taste a tiny morsel of each lot. At first this causes the lips and throat to swell, but in time this undesirable effect overcomes itself.

yard line right in front of the goal posts.

Here Harvard once more made a stubborn resistance, but with a mighty heave Coy was sent over the line for the first touchdown, and Bigelow kicked the goal. The first half ended with the score 6 to 0 in favor of Yale.

Second Half Starts at 3:08.

Bigelow kicked off in the second half at 3:08 and the ball was landed on Harvard's thirty-five yard line. It was rushed back to Yale territory on the same yard line. The ball was then kept going back and forth up and down the field within a radius of forty yards for the first ten minutes of play.

VISITS WHITE HOUSE

J. Pierpont Morgan Calls on Roosevelt by Appointment.

RESULT OF CONFAB UNKNOWN

But Believed to Be in Relation to the Financial Situation—One Year Treasury Certificates—As to Currency Legislation.

Washington, Nov. 23.—J. Pierpont Morgan and George F. Baker, the latter president of the First National bank of New York city, arrived here for a conference with Secretary Cortelyou of the treasury. At 10 o'clock last night Messrs. Morgan and Baker, accompanied by Assistant Secretary Robert Bacon of the state department, went to the White House to see the president by appointment. The object of their visit was not divulged, but it was believed to be in relation to the financial situation. Upon leaving the White House at 11:25, after being with the president an hour and a half, Mr. Morgan on being asked in regard to the developments replied that conditions in New York were reassuring. He said everything possible was being done to relieve the money stringency and that the situation was satisfactory.

Mr. Morgan said also that his object in coming to Washington was to see Secretary Cortelyou in furtherance of the conference he had with the secretary in New York last week, at which time means were discussed for the further relief of the situation. He saw Secretary Cortelyou before going to the White House and called on President Roosevelt to pay his respects. Mr. Morgan probably will return to New York today. He could not say whether he would again see the president before leaving for New York.

An important announcement of policy was made by Secretary Cortelyou in regard to the allotment of the new one year treasury certificates which indicates that the secretary is prepared to cut red tape as far as possible and place the proceeds of the sale of the certificates promptly at the disposal of the money market. He proposes to return to national banks subscribing for the certificates as a deposit of public money 75 per cent of the cash paid for them. The remaining 25 per cent will go for the time being to strengthen the cash balance of the treasury.

The banks surrendering this 25 per cent will not, however, suffer a reduction in their supply of currency, for they will be entitled to receive the par value of the certificates purchased in new bank circulation. In order to make this transaction immediately effective the treasury will retain the certificates purchased by each bank if it desires that they be deposited with the United States treasury as security for circulation and will ship the notes at once.

Secretary Cortelyou is studying the applications for certificates carefully in order to make the allotments in the manner which will be most beneficial to the monetary situation.

A great variety of rumors are in circulation in regard to the purposes of the president and Secretary Cortelyou in regard to currency legislation. Suggestions such as the insuring of deposits in national banks, which Mr. Bryan has just endorsed; the issue of additional bank notes against state and municipal bonds and the requirement of interest on government deposits in the banks are reported to have been presented to members of the administration and to have been favorably received. The fact appears to be, however, that the president and secretary of the treasury are simply assuming a receptive attitude and are listening to all suggestions which are made to them without committing themselves to any.

THE KNOCK-OUT BLOW

City Attorney Kellogg Quotes the Law, But Straddles the Real Question at Issue.

City Attorney John P. Kellogg has given his opinion in regard to the proposed boxing exhibition to be given in this city on December 6, by the National Athletic club. It says that a boxing exhibition is legal while a prize fight is a serious offense. His opinion was asked by the board of safety who did not wish to grant the application until they had heard from Mr. Kellogg. The opinion follows and speaks for itself:

Waterbury, Nov. 21, 1907. To the Honorable Board of Commissioners of Public Safety, City of Waterbury:

In response to the request of your honorable body contained in the following vote:

Voted, That a copy of the petition of the National Athletic club for permission to hold a sparring exhibition be transmitted to the city attorney, and he be requested to furnish this board, on or before Monday, November 25, 1907, with an opinion as to whether the board of commissioners of public safety can legally grant such petition.

I would respectfully advise you,

That a sparring exhibition, pure and simple, is not an offense either against the law of the state or the provisions of the charter of this city, provided section 3 of the ordinance entitled "Good Order and Decency," is complied with. I must advise you, however, that under the law of this state prize fighting is a serious offense covering not only the participants, but any witnesses, or anyone who in any way has aided or encouraged such fight. The sections set forth this offense are as follows:

Section 1282. Prize Fighting. Every person who shall be principal or second in any prize fight in this state shall be imprisoned not more than five years, or fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both. (As amended, see chapter 158, public acts, 1903.)

Section 1283. Witnessing or Aiding Prize Fights. Every person who shall be present at any prize fight, to aid, abet, or assist therein, or give countenance thereto, or who shall aid or encourage such fight, in this state, without being present thereto, shall be imprisoned not more than two years, or fined not more than five hundred dollars, or both.

Since the passage of these sections the state has set forth a definite policy prize fighting in chapter 157 of the public acts of 1903, reading as follows:

"A contest in which blows are struck which are intended or calculated to stun, disable, or knockout either of the contestants, or in which either contestant is counted out or otherwise declared defeated because of failure to resume the contest within a certain time, shall be deemed a prize fight within the meaning of section 1282 of the general statutes."

If it seems possible to your board that a sparring exhibition can be given which would not violate any portion of this definition, and that it will be a contest in which no blows are to be struck which are either intended or calculated to stun, disable, or knockout either of the contestants, or in which either contestant is not to be declared defeated for failure to resume the contest within a certain time, then I am of the opinion that you can grant a permit for the exhibition proposed.

On the other hand, if you are of the opinion that in the proposed contest there will be blows struck calculated to stun, disable, or knockout an opponent, or that the contest may be decided by the failure of one to continue within a limited time, then you should not grant the desired permit.

Respectfully,
JOHN P. KELLOGG,
City Attorney.

"JIMMIE" HURT

One of Waterbury's Best Fire Horses Put Out of Business This Noon

NO DAMAGE FROM FIRE

While answering the call of box 263, at the corner of Abbott avenue and Phoenix avenue, this afternoon about 1:15, Hook and Ladder No. 1 collided with a pole at the corner of North Main and Phoenix avenue, with the result that Jimmie, one of the big grays, had his shoulder blade broken. The horse, according to the veterinary attending him, will be useless from now on for the fire department.

Chemical Engine No. 1 and hose wagon No. 2, one right after the other, had gone along North Main street and had taken the turn onto Abbott avenue with safety, when Hook and Ladder No. 1, led by the three grays, came along. Grover Cleveland, the regular driver, is ill at his home on East Main street, so "Jack" Johnson was handling the reins. "Eddie" Byrnes was on the steering wheel.

It looked as though Johnson thought the fire was further up North Main, for he made a close turn all of a sudden into Abbott avenue. The horse, so it is said, slipped, but did not go down. But it went against the iron pole which holds up the trolley wires with such force that it was seriously injured. The hook and ladder also went into the pole, that is the front wheel of it. The horse was quickly unhitched and taken to the stables of Dr. Bland, the veterinary, where it was found his shoulder blade was broken. Dr. Beere said the animal would be useless to the fire department from now on.

The hook and ladder was in such a way as to block the entrance to Abbott avenue. Engine company No. 2 was stalled until Chief Snagg came along. He turned around and started for Phoenix avenue by way of East Main and he directed the engine to follow.

The fire amounted to nothing, being in a closet over the Duesler Bros' market.

The injured horse has been in the department about five years and was purchased for $300.

ATTORNEYS CLAIM $2,000

For Administration on Franklin L. Peck's Estate.

In the probate court this afternoon there was a hearing on the account of the Judge George H. Cowell and Mrs. Henrietta J. Peck as administrators on the estate of Mrs. Peck's husband, the late Franklin L. Peck. The account showed that Attorney E. F. Cole for services rendered charged $1,000, that Judge Cowell charged the same, and Mrs. Peck asked $2,000. Attorney Seymour of New York, representing the heirs of Mr. Peck's first wife, did not object to Mrs. Peck's claim. He said she was deserving of every cent of it because she had earned it, but he most strenuously objected to the claims of the lawyers. He thought $250 would be good pay for what Attorney Cole did for the estate, and considering that all Judge Cowell did was to write four letters, he thought $250 a letter was a pretty stiff rate. He believed Judge Cowell would compromise in some way.

It was shown that Mrs. Peck did almost all the work. She collected all the rents and there is due from that source now only $16. This is considered to be a very good record, and therefore Mrs. Peck was justified in putting in a claim for $2,000. There was no objection from any source or line of heirs to her claim. The hearing was continued to Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

TOOK BERNARD'S EYE.

Miss Agnes Scott, Vaudeville Artist, at Jacques This Week.

While in this city yesterday afternoon Sam Bernard, who played at Pol's last evening, strolled into the Jacques to see the variety for awhile. He did not think there was any surprise in store for him, but there was. He was more than impressed with the act of "The Wall Between," written and played by Miss Agnes Scott, and immediately sought an interview with her. Bernard thinks she is just the girl for the stellar role of a new play to be produced by the Shuberts the first of the year. Last evening Miss Scott, her sister, Miss Bernardine Scott, and Mr. Bernard had a conference in which it was planned to have Miss Scott take the place which Bernard offers. She is willing to do so, at least she thinks she will, although she has not fully decided, provided she can get out of her vaudeville contracts. She is booked on the Keith-Proctor circuit for about forty weeks, and it may be difficult to get her free from this booking time. There are few acts, especially those not having a leading place on a bill, of the standard of Miss Scott's and the booking houses may be reluctant to allow her to withdraw from her contract. Miss Scott is a native of Nashville, Tenn., and has been on the stage for six years. She first started as an elocutionist then went into a stock company and recently wrote the sketch which she is now playing. As stated in the Democrat's review of the show it is fashioned after "The American Lord" as played by William Crane and is a delightful skit.
